

Fly Now

music & lyrics by Kim Banffy

Crumbling cookie moon hangs high in a cellophane sky.
In a pregnant pause above the plain I'm looking down the gorges from the train.
'Can't be your everything anymore. It's time for me to close the door;
Time for you to fly now.

Seems our lives were so entwined, that's the way it was designed.
Now it's time our paths diverged but I'll be trav'ling with you when you go;
A mem'ry of a way of being, my spirit feels what you are seeing,
Spread your wings & fly now.

Soar on your wings, don't be afraid.
If you could see yourself with un-blinkered eyes
You know you've got it made. Don't believe the lies you hear inside your head.
Tell the voices in your head Go to bed!

Crumbling cookie moon hangs high in a cellophane sky.
In a pregnant pause above the plain I'm looking down the gorges from the train.
'Can't be your everything anymore. It's time for me to close the door;
Time for you to fly now.
Spread your wings & fly now.