

Jacaranda Time

music & lyrics by Kim Banffy

*Jacaranda time in Sydney...purple glimpses show,
Jasmine-scented breeze is blowing through my window,
But it's you I miss, longing for your kiss;
The promise of a summer love, it's your caress I know.*

*Ch: Walking down the street, people that I meet
Never hear me sigh as I pass them by.
'Thought I saw your face, gone without trace,
Leaving me here with summer coloured skin.*

*Coffee-sippers' laughter floating through the dappled shade.
People wander, window-shopping, through the arcade,
Lovers in the park. It's so long 'til dark.
The promise of a summer love- the mem'ry just won't fade.*

*Chorus
'Thought I felt you floating 'round my shoulders, in my hair,
Whispering caresses that I know are barely there.
Are you there?*

*Jacaranda blossom carpet underneath the trees,
Glimpse of turquoise harbour water, hum of the bees.
But I long for you...
It seems nothing's new.
The promise of a summer love,
The longing won't appease.*

2014 All rights reserved. Unauthorised reproduction, renting, public performance and broadcasting of this record without prior permission of the copyright owner prohibited. Proudly independently produced. All artwork by Kim Banffy.